

The Sane Clown Posse

The Juggalos are a gang of ax-murdering clowns who worship the rap band Insane Clown Posse. Well, that's the general impression of them. But most Juggalos maintain that they are misunderstood. "It isn't fair just because this group depicts violent images and talks about very crude murder scenarios," lamented Juggalo Patrick Flanary. That being said, there have been quite a few strange crimes associated with the group. Two examples:

- A Juggalo cut off a woman's pinky toe and drank her blood.
- Two Juggalos threw feces at Tila Tequila during a concert.

But it's not all fun and games. Roughly 15 percent of America's one million Juggalos are members of actual gangs, and they've been known to commit really gruesome murders with hatchets and other sharp objects. So it's not surprising that, in 2011, the FBI classified the Juggalos as a gang.

At first, Insane Clown Posse cofounder Shaggy 2 Dope thought the classification was "pretty dope." (That means good.) But he changed his tune when he found out that non-gang-affiliated Juggalos were getting hit with harsher sentences for petty crimes. So the band sued the FBI to have their dope name restored, and even held a rally in Washington, DC, in 2017, stating, "We truly are a family that is united by a shared love of music and fellowship." As of last report, however, Juggalos are still on the gang list. So if a scary clown approaches you in a dark alley, just ask, "Are you a good Juggalo, or are you a bad Juggalo?"